INTRODUCTION.

For my authority for this genealogy, I have consulted Dr. Styles' History of Windsor, Connecticut; the old Monuments in Turkey Hills, which was a parish of Windsor; sundry family records; and I have examined some books on heraldry. In my description of families, I speak generally of such sons and daughters only as lived to be nearly or quite men and women grown. I have given but little description of any families except those in the direct line from William Thrall, the ancestor, who was born in England, to Walter G. Thrall, who was born in Columbus, Ohio, (who is the writer's grandson.)* I have given a sketch of the writer's uncles, aunts and first cousins. I should gladly have given a more particular history of great uncles, and aunts, and second cousins, but I was too deficient in their history. For many years I have been collecting the facts here recorded.

I hope this will excite others to extend the record through other lines of the Thrall family, which can conveniently be done by adding to this a few blank leaves; and I recommend to each person to extend the record as far as their information reaches. Few seem to be aware of the importance of keeping a correct genealogical trace of their families and ancestors. Many estates have been lost to their rightful owners for the want of the necessary evidence of relationship. Genealogies and family records tend to promote family ties and friendly associations. They cement the brotherhood of relatives. All are sensible of the pride and gratification one feels when he can turn to a line of virtuous ancestors. A person having a family pride, is less likely to be guilty of a disgraceful act, than one who is wholly indifferent as to his connections.

The great body of the early settlers of New England were worthy men. Many were of the higher class. Puritanism did not generally prevail among the ignorant or dissolute. There has been, in our country, a great neglect in preserving family records. There is now much difficulty in obtaining the names, ages, and locality of many of our ancestors. It is not so in Europe, where the laws of primogeniture and hereditary honors prevail; they necessarily preserve family records. We should cherish with grateful recollection the memory of parents, and follow their good advice and example, forgetting their foibles and errors.

Our ancestors came from England. We find the name there, and in this country, spelled in different ways — as Thrall, Trall, Thrale, Thrail, &c. The rules of orthography, in 1650, were not well settled. The writer knew quite recently, two brothers, who lived about twenty miles apart, one spelling his surname Jacobs, the other James. We find in the seal of paper money issued by the Colony of Massachusetts, in 1690, the words Massachusetts Bay, in New England, spelled "Mattachvsets Bay in Nov Anglia."

Of the name in England, we find Henry Thrall, or Thrale, of London, a wealthy brewer, who was a member of the House of Commons in Parliament in 1763; he died in 1781. His wife was an authoress, and published a volume of her works in 1786. She was distinguished for beauty and accomplishments. Robert Trall was a Presbyterian minister, and an author. His son Robert was also a minister. James, the son of the latter, who spelled his name Thrall, was, in 1765, Bishop of Downs and Connor. William Thrall, 1st, our ancestor, generally spelled his name Thrall, yet I have seen a deed of his conveying land, where it was spelled Trall.

Collins' Peerage, vol. 4, page 447, says Richard Thrall, Esq., of Denwick, County of Sussex, married Margaret, eldest daughter of Mr. Onslow, who was Lord Chancellor in the eighth year of Queen Elizabeth.

We find the name often in all the north and northwestern portions of the United States.

OF OUR ANCESTORS.

We are informed that the church record of Windsor, Connecticut, states that a Congregational Church was formed in Plymouth, England, in March, 1630, and the same year came to Dorchester, Massachusetts. Their minister was the Rev. John Wareham, from Exeter, England. William Thrall, our ancestor, was a member of Mr. Wareham's church. We find in Prince's chronology of New England, page 271, "that in the latter part of the year 1629, a Congregational Church of pious people held a meeting in the new hospital at Plymouth, England, and chose and called those Godly ministers, Rev. Mr. John Wareham, of Exeter, and the Rev. John Meverick, to be their officers, who accepted and were ordained their ministers." Page 274.—"March 20, 1630, the Revs. Mr. Wareham and Meverick, with many Godly families and people, from Devonshire, Dorsetshire and Sonerssetshire, sailed from Plymouth, England, in the Mary and John, for Massachusetts. Page 277.—"May 30, Lord's Day. Mr. Wareham, and his church, and their goods, were put on shore at Nantasket Point. They went immediately to Charlestown, and from thence to Mattepan, and began a town and named it Dorchester, and the native Indians were kind to them." Page 369.—"Mr. Wareham and Mr. Meverick were both ministers of the Church of England. They were allowed to form congregations to take to New England." Mr. Wareham, and the larger part of his church, in 1635, settled in Windsor, Connecticut.

Willard's History of the United States says, seventeen vessels and fifteen hundred persons came to New England in 1630. Roger Clapp, one of the party, says: "O the hunger that many suffered, and saw no hope to be satisfied only by the clams, and mussels, and fish. . . . Yet to the praise of God's glory, He sent the poor Indians with baskets of corn on their backs, to trade with us, which waa a good supply unto many."

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.

In this Genealogy, the former edition, published by Mr. Walter Thrall in 1862 (including the Introduction), is reproduced as far as the Seventh Generation. From this point the lines of the following persons have been brought down to the present time: In the Sixth Generation, Jesse Thrall, see page 14; in the Seventh Generation, James Adams, see page 18; Jonathan C. Thrall, see page 21; Chauncey Thrall, Jr., see page 21; and Samuel R. Thrall, see page 21. The time covered by this work is 284 years.

The Genealogy of the Rose family, in the latter part of this book, has been reproduced without extension from Mr. Thrall's edition.

EDWARD G. RANDALL.

GENEALOGY.

First Generation.—William Thrall was born in 1605 ; his wife's name was Goode. They had two sons, Timothy and David ; perhaps others. William died August 3d, (Sabbath) 1678, aged 73 years. His wife died July 30, 1676. Dr. Styles, in speaking of the first Indian war in New England, says : "Windsor was required to furnish thirty men for the offensive war against the Pequods, the names of only fifteen of whom can now be found." William Thrall, our ancestor, was one of the fifteen. The great battle was fought on the 26th of May, 1637. The danger was imminent, and so complete the victory, that it caused universal rejoicing throughout New England, and "a grant of land was given to each soldier and officer; and to this day the memory of an ancestor who was in the Pequod fight, is an honorable heir-loom in every Connecticut family."

Second Generation.—Timothy, the son of William, was born July 26, 1641, and married Deborah Gun, Nov. 10, 1659. He died June —, 1697, aged 56 years. His wife died Jan. 7, 1694. They had nine children : Deborah, Timothy, Mehit-able, Elizabeth, John, Martha, Thomas, Samuel and Abigail; the two last were twins. Timothy was a prominent citizen, possessing considerable property and influence. His name often appears in the records of Windsor. There were four generations of the name of Timothy. I do not attempt to give any history of eight of Timothy's children, or of their descendants. I only speak of John and his descendants.

Third Generation.—John 1st, the fifth child of Timothy, was born June 5, 1671, and married Mindwell Moses, Jan. 6, 1697. They had nine children: John 2d, Moses, Aaron, Amy, Joseph, David, Joel, Charles and Jerusha. John 1st died April 18th, 1732, aged 61 years and 9 months. There were five by the name of John, of different generations. I have seen but little record of this numerous family, except of John 2d.

Fourth Generation.—John 2d, the first child of John 1st, was born Oct. 13, 1699, and married Mary Roberts. They had eight children: John 3d, Mary, Aaron, Lucy, Samuel, Mindwell, Ezekiel and Benjamin. John 2d died in 1762, aged 63 years. John 1st and John 2d, and a number of their descendants, were buried in the Turkey Hills parish of Windsor, and several of their descendants are still living there. Dr. Styles says, Sergeant David Thrall, and Sergeant William Thrall, and Isaac and Giles Thrall, were soldiers in the Revolutionary War from Windsor.

Fifth Generation.—Samuel, the fifth child of John 2d, was born July 11, 1737, in Windsor, and married Lucy Winchell, daughter of Martin and Lucy Winchell. They had eleven children : Theodosia, Lucy, Mary, Samuel, Aaron, Jesse, Eliphas, Worthy, Chauncey, Mary and James. The first Mary, and James, died young. All the others had large families. Samuel 1st. (the writer's grandfather,) was a farmer, active, vigorous and industrious. He was an officer in the English service in the French war of 1762, and a Captain in the American service in the war of the Revolution. Before the Revolution he removed from Windsor to Granville, Massachusetts. He sympathized with the malcontent Shays, in 1784, and suffered considerably thereby. In 1788 he was a member of the Legislature of Massachusetts. In 1790 he removed to Rutland, Vermont. All his sons and daughters moved there about the same time, except Samuel, Jr., Lucy and Worthy. Samuel 1st had the reputation of a sensible, honest man, and exercised considerable influence in society. He was about 5 feet 9 inches in height, and weighed about 150 pounds, which was lighter than the average of his brothers or children. He was many years a consistent member of the Congregational Church in West Rutland. He died December 3, 1821, aged 84 years and 5 months. He was the last survivor of his generation. In the year 1820 he had six living sons and daughters, sixty-two living grand children, twenty-eight great grand children, and several of the fifth generation — over one hundred descendants. Their descendants have probably doubled each twenty-five years since; if so there were, in 1845, two hundred, and in 1870, four hundred. [The population of the United States has, for seventy-five years past, doubled in each twenty-three years.]

Samuel's wife, Lucy, was a woman of plain manners, stout frame and robust health; a kind-hearted Christian, always ready and willing to do her whole duty to her family and neighbors.

Her father died February 15, 1785. Her brothers were Martin, Nathaniel, and Dan. She had one sister, Deborah, who married Simeon Lewis, of Windsor, Connecticut.

Sixth Generation.—I am enabled to furnish a more full sketch of the sixth and seventh generations, than of those which preceded them, or of the descendants of the seventh.

Theodosia, the first daughter of Samuel and Lucy, intermarried with Titus Adams. They removed from Rutland to Esopus, Ulster County, New York, about the year 1810. Their sons were Titus, Jr., Timothy, Benjamin and James, and one daughter, Amanda, who married Robert Rosecrans, of Ohio.

Benjamin's descendants, in 1860, lived near Springfield, Massachusetts.

Samuel, Jr., the son of Samuel and Lucy, was born August 31, 1760, and died May 8, 1815. He married Triphosa Cooley, sister of the Rev. Dr. Cooley, for more than half a century the pastor of the Congregational Church in Granville, Massachusetts. Samuel was one of the Licking Land Company, who, with others, removed from Granville, Massachusetts, in the year 1805, and formed the first settlement in Granville, Ohio, where the Company had purchased a township and three quarters of land. He was a farmer, a member of the Congregational Church, an honest, industrious and respectable citizen. He had been a soldier in the war of the Revolution; his widow died in 1841, aged 74 years. They had seven sons: James, Aurelius. Samuel, Cotton M., Alexander, William and Timothy L.; and five daughters: Sarah, who married Jacob Goodrich; Mary Ann, who married P. Dean; Abigail, who married George Plumb, and after his death Ira Wood; Lucy, who married Azel Mead; and Barbary, who died aged eleven years. All except the last named had families. James was killed about the year 1814, by the fall of a log or tree, while he was chopping it. Aurelius was killed about the year 1831, by the falling of a bank of earth on him, while he was working near it. Samuel was killed about the year 1832, by the kick of a horse; and Cotton M. was killed about the year 1848, by a fall from a wagon. Strange fatality! that the four brothers should, by accident, at different times, and in different ways, meet a sudden death.

Aaron Thrall, the fifth child of Samuel and Lucy, was born January 25, 1763, and died June 7, 1810. He was for many years a Justice of the Peace, active in business; a man of property and an influential citizen. He married Olive Lovelond. They had one daughter, Rosetta M., (who married William Paige;) and five sons: Anson R., who died about 1851; Linus G.,* who died in October, 1881; Aaron W., who died in 1820; Homer L., and Orlando M. Aaron's widow married Captain William Mead, and died in 1858, aged 89 years. She was the last survivor of that generation of the Thrall family. In the year 1815, the families of Aaron Thrall and William Mead emigrated from Rutland, Vermont, to Granville, Ohio. All the children, except Aaron, Jr., raised families. Homer was a distinguished physician, and for a number of years a Professor in Kenyon College. All the children of Aaron were living in January, 1862, except Aaron, Jr., and Anson R.

Jesse, the sixth child of Samuel, was born May 7, 1765, and died at Circleville, Ohio, December 16, 1843, in the 79th year of his age. He married Mabel Rose, daughter of Justus and Deborah

* Rev. Homer, son of Linus G. visited Rutland, and preached in the Congregational Churches, in West Rutland, August 13; and in East Rutland, August 20; and on Mt. Killington, August 27, 1882.

Rose, January 13, 1791, in Granville, Massachusetts, and soon after settled in Rutland, Vermont. In 1819 he removed to Ohio. He had a strong intellect, a retentive memory, and was a jovial companion; was fond of company, a farmer; he was a man of large size. Mabel, his wife, was born in Granville, Massachusetts, January 13, 1768, and died at Granville, Ohio, December 17, 1834, being nearly 67 years old. For about fifty years she was a consistent member of the Baptist Church, beloved by all of her acquaintances, pious and exemplary; a warm friend, and possessed a cultivated mind. This couple had eight children: Luther, Walter, Reuben R., William B., and Charlote, and three others who died in infancy. The surviving children of their parents were all communicants in the Episcopal Church. I shall say more of them hereafter.

Eliphas, the seventh child and fourth son of Samuel and Lucy, was born June 23, 1767, and died March 15, 1834. He married Polly Mead, who died in 1841, aged 67 years. He was a Justice of the Peace, an upright and industrious citizen, for a number of years a member of the Congregational, and afterwards of the Methodist Church. He had seven sons: Joel, Oliver, Lyman, Eliphas, Benjamin F., Aaron and Worthy; and three daughters: Orrilla, who married Johnson Brown, of Underhill, Vermont; Mary, who married Rev. Thomas Parker, of Licking County, Ohio, and Caroline, who married Samuel Cooper. All had families. The family, except Orrilla, in 1815, moved from Underhill, Vermont, to Granville, Ohio. In 1860, all were dead except Dr. Benjamin F., and Mrs. Parker, who, in 1860, resided in Licking County, Ohio. Oliver, Lyman, Aaron, Worthy and Caroline, died near Mt. Carmel, Illinois. Oliver left five children, Lyman four, Dr. Aaron five, Worthy four, Caroline four, Joel two, Dr. Benjamin F., Mrs. Parker, and Eliphas, each raised nine children; Orrilla left four.

Worthy, the eighth child, and fifth son of Samuel, was born May 27, 1769, and died July 16, 1816. He married Sarah Phelps, and lived in Windsor, Connecticut. Their children were: Sally, who married Arthur Griswold, and in 1859 was a widow, living in Windsor, Friend, Harvey, Deborah, Lucy, Lewis, Leicester and Minerva. Friend, and his wife and child, were lost in Lake Erie, about the year 1830, while emigrating to the West. Report says that four of Worthy's family were, in 1850, living near Tonawanda Creek in Western New York.

Chauncey, the sixth son of Samuel and Lucy, was born December 6, 1772. He married Polly Chipman, and had three sons: Jonathan C., Chauncey, and Samuel R.; and three daughters: Lurena married Henry Hewett, and both died some years ago ; Theodosia married Judson Gorham; and Mary married Jacob Bailey. Chauncey, Jr., Theodosia, and Mary, and their families, lived in West Rutland, Vermont, in 1860. Jonathan C. died in 1852 ; his family lived in Rutland. He was a communicant in the Episcopal Church, and a man of extensive information and influence. Samuel R. is a Presbyterian clergyman in Illinois. The following obituary notice is copied from the Rutland Herald : "Died, April 4, 1844, in West Rutland, Chauncey Thrall, Esq., Aged 72 years. The inhabitants of this place have been called of late to mourn the departure of an unusual number of leading men ; men who have occupied such stations, and taken such a part in the affairs of the community, as to cause their deaths to be universally felt and lamented. The deceased was one of that number. The equanimity of his temper, and his uniform kindness as a father, can be realized only by those who sustained to him the relation of children, and are left to lament their loss. But as a citizen and a Christian, his example has been before all, and was such as to gain the respect and love of his neighbors, and inspire them with the hope that death did not find him unprepared." He had been a Representative in the Legislature, and most of his life in some public employment. His wife died a few years before him.

Lucy, 2d daughter of Samuel and Lucy, married Eber Spelman; they lived and died in Stratford, Toland County, Connecticut. They had six sons: Daniel, Eber, Apollos, Sylvester, Samuel and Aaron, and three daughters: Statira, who married John Johnson; Charlotte, who married Orren Howland; and Elsamana, who married John Cade. All had families, and most of them who were living in 1851, resided in Stratford, Connecticut. Dr. Sylvester Spelman resides in Granville, Ohio; he is a worthy member of the Baptist Church, is wealthy and respectable. Eber is a Presbyterian; the daughters are Methodists; Eber, the father, and Daniel, Charlotte, Samuel and Apollos, were dead in 1855. Lucy, the mother died August 21, 1824, aged 67 years.

Polly, the youngest daughter of Samuel and Lucy, died near Lockport, New York, July 26, 1840, aged 64 years. She married Solomon Mead, who died about 1821. They had seven children: Helon, Hulda, Mary, Lucy, Hiram, and others. Mr. Mead and family lived in Cornwall, (Vt.) until about the year 1817, and after that, in Royalton, near Lockport, New York. Polly's second marriage was to Paul Sawyer.

ROSE GENEALOGY.*

Mabel† was the third daughter and eighth child of Justus and Deborah Rose. Justus was the fifth son of Jonathan and Abigail.

First Generation.—Jonathan was born (says tradition,) in Scotland. He and his family settled in East Granville, Massachusetts, in 1741. He was a deacon in the Congregational Church. He was burned to death when his house was burned, in Granville, in October, 1767.

His wife, Abigail, died in 1793, aged 103 years. She had been blind for about fifteen years. Her memory was remarkably good until near her death. They had fourteen children, seven of whom lived to a very old age, and all of whom had families. In 1790, when she was one hundred years old, a meeting was called of many of her descendants, a sermon was preached on the occasion, and her offspring enumerated. She then had one hundred and ten grand-children, over three hundred great grand-children, and over forty of the fifth generation. While she was yet living, she had over four hundred and fifty living descendants. On the place where her husband was burned, a house was erected in which she lived, and in 1859 two of her grand-children, then very old, were living in it. Their sons were Jonathan 2d, David, Daniel, John, Justus, Elisha, and Sharon. Their daughters were Abigail, who married Sharon Peas, and settled in Enfield. Dorothy married — Seward, and settled in Granville. Damara married Oliver Treat, and settled in Weathersfield. Betsey married Aaron Spelman, and settled in Granville. Caroline married John Seward.

I do not attempt to give the history of any of Jonathan's descendants but Justus, who is the lineal ancestor of Walter. I hope others will extend the history.

Second Generation.—Justus Rose, the fifth son of Jonathan and Abigail, was born March —, 1724, and died September 25, 1781. He was a deacon in the Congregational Church. He married Deborah Barlow, daughter of James Barlow. They lived in East Granville, Massachusetts. They had seven sons and four daughters, viz: Levi, Gad, Deborah, Triphena, Reuben, Justus 2d, Timothy, Lemuel, Mabel, Rhoda and Hiram. Deborah married Stephen Spelman, and settled in Granville, Massachusetts. Triphena married Jesse Miller. MABEL married JESSE THRALL, and settled in Rutland, Vermont, and in 1819, in Granville, Ohio. Rhoda married Enoch Graves, and settled in Granville, Ohio.

After the death of Justus, Deborah, his widow, married Aaron Spelman, whose first wife was Betsey, a sister of Justus Rose, her first husband. Deborah Barlow, the wife of Justus Rose, had brothers, Nathan, Edmond, James, Ebenezer, and Benjamin; and three sisters, Sarah, who married Ebenezer Seward. Elizabeth married Deacon Thomas Gillet, and Olive married Amos Spafford.

Third Generation.—Levi Rose, the eldest son of Justus and Deborah, married Mary Deming, and settled in Granville, Mass. They had sons, Levi 2d, Calvin and Silas; and five daughters, Lucy, who married Ethan Bancroft; after his death, William Smedley. They lived in Granville, Ohio. Polly married David W. Bancroft. Hannah married Martin Moses. Anna married Moses Cooly, and Orpha married Alpheus Bancroft. From the marriage of the parents, Levi and Mary, to the year 1854, when Levi 2d, the eldest child, was seventy-five years old, and Orpha, the youngest, was fifty-seven, there had not been a death among the children.

Gad, the second son of Justus and Deborah, married Caroline Hale. They had ten children; their sons were Gad 2d, JUSTUS 3d, Barlow, Oliver and Curtis; and five daughters: Caroline, who married John A. King. Annorah, who married Oliver Phelps. Beulah, who married Charles Dennison. Diantha, who married Thaddeus Lyman; and Diadema, who never married.

Reuben, the third son of Justus and Deborah, never married. He possessed superior mental faculties.

Deborah, the eldest daughter of Justus and Deborah, married Stephen Spelman. They had twelve children: Stephen 2d, Jesse, Naomi, Festus, Rufus, Buel, Deborah, Meriam, Owel, Jacob, Mabel, and Tirzah. Naomi married Martin Tinker; her second marriage was with Asa Seymour. Deborah married James Barlow. Meriam married Rev. Silas Root. Mabel married Joseph Bradshaw. Tirzah married Alpheus Gibbons; a second marriage was with Deacon Gad Case. Jesse, Festus, Rufus, and Jacob died before the year 1850.

Triphena, the second daughter of Justus and Deborah, married Jesse Miller. They settled in Canandaigua, New York, about 1798. Jesse Miller was born in Massachusetts, February 9, 1757. Triphena, his wife, was born April 27, 1754. They were married in 1779. They had children: Triphena, Lyman, Jesse, Rebecca, Samantha, Joseph, Saloma, Ransom, and others. Triphena married Amasa Primble, who is deceased; his family, in 1860, resided in Erie, Pennsylvania. All of Jesse and Triphena's family had departed this life before 1861, except Lyman, Samantha, Ransom, and Triphena. Lyman, in 1860, lived in Medina, Ohio, and Ransom in Terre Haute, Indiana.

When the writer [Walter Thrall] was emigrating from Vermont to Ohio, in 1815, he called on his uncle, Jesse Miller, in Canandaigua, who stated that when he was about to move from Granville, Massachusetts, to Canandaigua, which was then far in the backwoods, his wife's friends complained that he was about to take their sister into the wilderness, so far from civilization, that they could never hear from her, and where she could never go to church, &c. ; but, said he, in a few years (in 1805) they moved four hundred miles further into the wilderness, to Granville, Ohio.

Justus Rose, second son of Justus and Deborah, was born July 13, 1760, and died June 4, 1849. He married Ada Howe November 11, 1784. They lived and died in Granville, Mass. They had thirteen children, four of whom died young. Their sons were Chauncey, Ormond, Justus, Ephraim, Freeman, Patrick, and George W. Their daughters were Artemas, who married William Tracy. Demaras, who married Nathan Knox, and who, in 1859, lived in St. Lawrence County, New York. Deborah never married. Chauncey and Ormond are dead.

Timothy, fifth son and seventh child of Justus and Deborah, was born June 1, 1762, and died November 17, 1813. He married Lydia Munson, who died February 27, 1855, aged 87 years. They had seven children; two sons, Timothy C., who is a deacon in the Congregational Church, in Granville, Ohio, an office which his father, grand father, and great grand father had, in their time, held; and Samuel, who died in 1857. He was a pious and talented clergyman in the same denomination. Clarissa married Samuel Bancroft, who for twenty-one years, was a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in Licking County, Ohio. Samuel married William Stedman; after his death she married Joseph Linnel. She died June 16, 1854. Louisa married Oliver C. Dickinson. Lydia married William Clemens; she died in 1821. Almerna married Henry Bancroft, a banker and merchant in Granville, Ohio. All the families were members of the Congregational or Presbyterian Church, except Louisa and Lydia.

Timothy 1st, the son of Justus, was of pure morals, a jovial companion, a Judge of the Common Pleas Court, and a deacon in the Church. He served three years as sergeant in the army of the Revolution. During his service the following circumstance happened: He and his brother Lemuel, and Amasa Howe were companions in the army at the south. While there, Timothy was taken very sick with the small-pox and was confined in the hospital. During his sickness the army, with Lemuel Rose and Mr. Howe, marched to the north. Some time after, one Watson, an acquaintance of theirs who was left in the hospital with Timothy, joined the army where Lemuel and Howe were. He had a quantity of Timothy's clothing, and other articles, and said that Timothy died in the hospital, and gave the articles to him for taking care of him. Lemuel wrote to the friends in Granville, informing them of the death of Timothy. The friends deeply mourned his death, and his funeral sermon was preached. Some weeks after, some troops marched into camp, and Timothy, the brother and companion for whom they had mourned as dead, was one of them. Lemuel and Howe stated what Watson had told them. He replied that Watson expected he would die and stole his things. Timothy was a prominent leader in the church after they settled in Granville, Ohio, until a clergyman was procured.

Lemuel, the sixth son and eighth child of Justus and Deborah, was born in 1764, and died on Sunday, September 13, 1835. He served three years in the Revolutionary army. He married Achsah Hale. In 1805 they emigrated from Granville, Mass., to Granville, Ohio. He was a deacon in the church, a justice of the peace, a good neighbor, an upright citizen, and possessed a good property. They had three sons, Helon, Lemuel and Christopher C., and four daughters : Mariam, who married Elkanah Linnel. Susannah, who married Amos Carpenter. Silence, who married Joshua Stark ; and Matilda, who married Giles Hickox, and after his death, Dr. Wheaton. Christopher C., Mariam, Susannah, Mr. Stark, and Mr. Hickox died before 1860; Mrs. Stark died in 1862. All except Helon, Christopher, and Mr. Hickox, were members of the Congregational Church.

Lemuel 1st was one of the twenty-five who were formed into a Congregational Church in Granville, Mass., in 1805, and emigrated as a church to Granville, Ohio. It was said of him that "his gravity, inflexible integrity, and promptness, enabled him to honor his offices, and his kindness and generosity was a blessing to his church," and friends.

Rhoda married Enoch Graves. She died in 1802. They had two sons, Enoch and Austin, and three daughters : Orpha, who married Joshua Linnel. Abba, who married Timothy Spelman ; and Rhoda, who married Strong Clark. All had families, and all died before 1850, except Messrs. Linnel, Spelman and Clark.

Hiram Rose, the youngest son of Justus and Deborah, was born in Granville, Mass., in 1766. He married Sabra Cooley, who died August 16, 1854. They had two sons, Hiram P. and Milon, and three daughters: Electa, who married Claudius Graves. Sabra, who married Revel Everett; and Alcy, who married Daniel Durphy. All had families. In 1853, all the daughters were living in Hartford, Licking County, Ohio, and all were members of the Presbyterian Church.

The following obituary notice was published of Hiram: "Died, on Thursday, December 20, 1855, Mr. Hiram Rose, aged 89 years. He emigrated from Granville, Massachusetts, to Granville, Ohio, in the year 1805, with the Licking Land Company. He was one of the original church members. He saw the fifth generation from him. His wife, who had been his faithful companion for sixty-four years, deceased about one year before him, from which time he gradually and peacefully declined, and paid the debt of nature without the intervention of disease, other than those incident to extreme age. He possessed an inflexible principle, was a devoted Christian and a faithful citizen. He went to the grave mourned by numerous friends, and without an enemy."

Several years before Mr. Rose's death, he related to the writer the following facts: He was a few months in the army of the Revolution. After the close of the war he taught school several winters; and such was the hardness of the times, and the scarcity of money, that for four winters he could only get three dollars and board, per month. The fifth winter, as times grew better, he had ten dollars and board, per month. In 1787 he was living in Granville, Mass., was strong, and accustomed to hard labor. The wages of laborers were very low. He could get from five to six dollars per month. It was common for good hands to work for their board in the winter, and for three or four dollars, and board and washing, per month, in the summer.

By the laws of Massachusetts at that time, he and his brothers, when they had no property, were each assessed a poll tax of $6.12, annually. Yet by industry and economy, he was able, in 1805, to buy a good farm in Granville, Ohio, on which he lived till his death. All his family, seven in number, that in 1805 moved to Ohio, were living in 1854. Four generations were then living on the same farm. Hiram, when he died, was the last of that numerous generation. He and his brothers Timothy and Lemuel, and Enoch Graves and others, formed what was called "The Licking Land Company," and bought seven quarters of townships of land in and near Granville, and settled there in 1805, and soon converted the wilderness into a fruitful field.

There were, about the year 1790, living in Granville, Massachusetts, two brothers, John and Jonathan Rose, our ancestor. John had sons, Elijah, Enoch and Jarius, and a daughter, who married Roswell Graves. Jonathan had sons, Simeon and Abel.

I can give but a very imperfect list of the descendants of Jonathan Rose, after the fourth generation. Of the sixty families of that generation, I give a sketch of but four.

Fourth Generation.—Levi Rose 2d, the son of Levi and Mary, was born June 4, 1779. He married Polly Stowe; they had eleven children, five of whom died young. The survivors were William, Roland, Levi, George, Polly, and Betsey. The latter married Edwin Blanchard, and after his decease, her second marriage was with James Smith. Polly intermarried with Lucius Case.

Fifth Generation.—William Rose, the eldest son of Levi 2d and Mary, was born October 23, 1806. He married Mary Atwood. They had seven children, two of whom died young.

Sixth Generation.—Emeline, the eldest daughter of William and Mary, married Charles Chapin. They had no living children. Mary married Levi Thorn, a Baptist clergyman. They had four children. Harriet married Henry Keables. They had two children.

Seventh Generation.—Frank Thorn, the eldest son of Mary and Levi, was born in 1853.

Fourth Generation.—Hiram Prosper Rose, son of Hiram and Sabra, was born January 22, 1792. He married Chloe Harris. They had three children, one of whom died young, and one of the survivors, Philena, died aged 16 years.

Fifth Generation.—Luman P. the only survivor, was born September 20, 1826. He married Emeline Starr. They had four children.

Sixth Generation.—Their eldest son, Milton T., was born April 7, 1847. Their other children are Clarence L., Leno M., and Carrie R.

It has been said of the descendants of Jonathan Rose to the fifth generation, a drunkard was not known among them.

Fourth Generation.—Timothy M. Rose, son of Timothy and Lydia, was born March 24, 1797. He married Matilda Mead. They had five children, two of whom died young. The survivors were Timothy, Clarissa, and Matilda; the last named died aged 17 years. Matilda (the mother) died March 1, 1857. Timothy's second marriage was with Susan Little, April 28, 1858.

Fifth Generation.—Timothy, son of Timothy M. and Matilda, was born February 14, 1821. He intermarried with Harriet A. Howe. They had two children, who are of the sixth generation: Timothy H. and Harriet M. Harriet A. (the mother) died in 1854. Timothy's second marriage was with Fidelia Follett; they have one child, Frank.

Fourth Generation.—Helon Rose, the first child of Lemuel and Achsah, was born November 5, 1788. He married Emily Wolcott, daughter of Horace Wolcott. They had three children, one of whom died young. Helon and his wife, and their two children, were living in 1862. Helon was a wealthy farmer and an honest citizen.

Fifth Generation.—Lyman W., son of Helon and Emily, was born January 2, 1817. He married Jane Dawes, who died August 15, 1852. They had two children, Emily and Henry D. Lyman's second marriage was with Sally E. Tyler. He is a successful merchant of Alexandria, Licking County, Ohio, and is highly esteemed.

Charlotte E., daughter of Helon and Emily, married Dr. William Shepard, the proprietor and conductor of a successful water cure institution, near Columbus, Ohio.

Sixth Generation.—Emily* and Henry D. Rose,† children of Lyman W. and Jane, in whom ends this line of this genealogy, were born in St. Albans, Licking County, Ohio.

* Emily Rose married Miner T. Ames April 18, 1866, and died May 4, 1877, in Chicago, Ill., in the thirty-seventh year of her age. She left three children, Knowlton L., Jennie R., and Hattie M.

† Henry D. Rose, at the age of twenty, was killed by lightning, in February, 1863, while serving as a soldier in the Union forces before Vicksburg.
